

ISU Women's and Gender Studies Presents:

Free and Open to the Public

Drew Anastasia

Confessions of a Karaoke Junkie:

How I Came to Narrate My Gender Transition by Losing My Voice

Illinois State University
Student Services Building, Room 375
Monday, March 16, 8 p.m.

Andrew Anastasia is a doctoral student and instructor in Rhetoric and Composition at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, and an ISU alum. His talk will connect with discourses within the feminist, LGB, and transgender communities through his research interests, which include philosophical investigations of the human voice, and transgender and queer studies.

Co-sponsored by FLAME and MECCPAC, a Dean of Students Diversity Initiative.

The Student Services building is located at the corner of University and College. Parking is available in the Bone Student Center parking lot on Locust Street.

Please contact wgstudies@ilstu.edu or (309) 438-2947 for special accommodations.

Printed on recycled paper

